1-1-2018

APA References for Periodicals (Online and Print) (Slides and Video)

Angela Gulick
Parkland College

Parkland College Center for Academic Success

Recommended Citation
Gulick, Angela and Parkland College Center for Academic Success, "APA References for Periodicals (Online and Print) (Slides and Video)" (2018). APA (American Psychological Association) Documentation. 4.
https://spark.parkland.edu/cas_apa/4

Open access to this Article is brought to you by Parkland College's institutional repository, SPARK: Scholarship at Parkland. For more information, please contact spark@parkland.edu.
APA References for Periodicals (Online and Print)

Angela Gulick
CAS Writing Specialist
June 2015
According to the APA Publication Manual, some online books, journals, and magazines have added “digital object identifier (doi) numbers to their bibliographic information because such numbers provide a “means of persistent identification for managing information on digital networks” (p. 188).

Please see the next slide for a sample doi number.
A Sample DOI Number

Here is an example DOI number found on a database article.

1. Social Neuroscience and its Relationship to Social Psychology

   DOI: 10.1521/soco.2010.28.6.675

   Social neuroscience creates emergent organizations beyond the individual. These emergent structures evolved hand in hand with neural, hormonal, cellular, and genetic mechanisms to support them because...

   Subjects: SOCIAL psychology; INTERPERSONAL relations; SOCIAL perception; SOCIAL interaction; NEUROSCIENCES; MECHANISM (Philosophy); EMERGENCE (Philosophy)

   Database: Academic Search Complete

   Add to folder | Relevancy: ————

   PDF Full Text (369KB)
What to Do If There Is No DOI Number

- If there is no doi number present, “[p]rovide the home page URL [web address] of the journal or of the book or report publisher. If you are accessing the article from a private database, you may need to do a quick web search to locate this URL” (pp. 191-192).
Sample References Templates

Select a link below to get information on a particular source. To get back to this page, select the symbol next to the title of each slide.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>WEBSITES AND OTHER ELECTRONIC SOURCES</th>
<th>ONLINE JOURNALS, MAGAZINES, AND NEWSPAPERS</th>
<th>BOOKS AND OTHER REFERENCE TEXTS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Website Article with One Author</td>
<td>Journals Versus Magazines</td>
<td>Book with One to Seven Authors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Website Article with Two to Six Authors</td>
<td>Online Article in a Journal Where Each Issue Begins with Page One</td>
<td>Book with Eight or More Authors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Website Article with Seven or More Authors</td>
<td>Online Article in a Journal Where Page Numbering Continues from the Previous Issue</td>
<td>Book with No Named Author</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Website Article with No Named Author</td>
<td>Online Article in a Magazine</td>
<td>Article from an Edited Collection</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Weblog (Blog) Posting</td>
<td>Online Article in a Newspaper</td>
<td>Entire Edited Book</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Podcast</td>
<td></td>
<td>Article in a Reference Book</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Message on Electronic Mailing List</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Class Lecture with Presentation Slides</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Class Lecture without Presentation Slides</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Electronic Version of a Printed Book</td>
<td></td>
<td>Electronic Version of a Printed Book</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| PRINT JOURNALS, MAGAZINES, AND NEWSPAPERS                                                                 |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Print Article in a Journal Where Each Issue Begins with Page One                                       |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Print Article in a Journal Where Page Numbering Continues from the Previous Issue                       |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Print Article in a Magazine                                                                            |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Print Article in a Newspaper                                                                           |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |

| MULTIMEDIA SOURCES                                                                                     |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Television Program (live and recorded)                                                                  |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Motion Picture (live and recorded)                                                                     |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
| Music or Audio Recording                                                                               |                                                                                                              |                                                                                                       |
Citing an Online Journal, Magazine, or Newspaper Article

Online journals, magazines, and newspapers can easily be found in academic databases. An academic database is merely a collection of electronic versions of journal, magazine, and newspaper articles. The documents in an academic database have already been published in a journal, magazine, or newspaper.

Many academic databases (though not all) also have “citation generators” which will create your References entries for you. However, be aware that sometimes these References entries have a few flaws in terms of spacing, hanging indents, and capitalization.

A Reference entry for an online journal, magazine, or newspaper article requires the following information:

- Last Name, First and Middle Initials of Author
- (Date of publication)
- Title of article
- Name of Journal, Magazine, or Newspaper italicized
- Volume number(issue number)
- Pages
- Digital object identifier (called a doi) or the web address of the journal’s publisher (not both).

- If you aren’t sure how to access academic database articles or use the citation generators, click here.
Journals Versus Magazines

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Journals</th>
<th>Magazines</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td><img src="https://via.placeholder.com/660x439.png" alt="Journals Image" /></td>
<td><img src="https://via.placeholder.com/144x335.png" alt="Magazines Image" /></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Journal articles generally have been peer reviewed. This means that the articles have been studied by a panel of professionals in a particular field to assure the accuracy and credibility of the information presented.</td>
<td>Magazine articles generally have received some screening but often are not written by experts in the field. Rather, many magazine articles are written by freelance or staff writers who research and write about a wide variety of topics.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Journal articles are usually longer and more complex than magazines that are read for everyday fun.</td>
<td>Magazine articles generally cover just a few pages or even fewer and are written at roughly a tenth to twelfth grade reading level, so the articles aren’t overly complicated.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Journal articles generally have few pictures or other images unless the graphics are part of a particular article (such as a pie chart or bar graph showing statistical information).</td>
<td>Magazines generally have lots of colorful graphics and are printed on glossy paper.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Journals usually have little advertising unless the advertisements are directly related to the field, such as advertisements for professional conferences and other scholarly books and publications.</td>
<td>Magazines generally have a lot of different advertisements, usually in relation to the readership of the magazine such as ads for women’s clothing, makeup, and jewelry targeted for readers of fashion magazines.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Online Article in a Journal Where Each Issue Begins with Page One

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

- Eight or More Authors: List the first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Online Article in a Journal Where Page Numbering Continues from the Previous Issue

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

- Eight or More Authors: List the first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Online Article in a Magazine

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.
  Title of Magazine volume number(issue number), page number – page number. doi:xx.xxxxxxxxxx or Retrieved from web address (no period)

- Eight or More Authors: List the first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Online Article in a Newspaper

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

- Eight or More Authors: List the first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

A Reference entry for a print journal, magazine, or newspaper article is very similar to an entry for an online article. Print articles require the following information:

- Last Name, First and Middle Initials of Author
- (Date of publication)
- Title of article
- Name of Journal, Magazine, or Newspaper italicized
- Volume number(issue number)
- Pages

Source for image: richkyoung.wordpress.com
Print Article in a Journal Where Each Issue Begins with Page One

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

- Eight or More Authors: List first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Print Article in a Journal Where Page Numbering Continues from the Previous Issue

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

- Eight or More Authors: List first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Print Article in a Magazine

- One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

- Eight or More Authors: List first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Source for both images: life.com
One to Seven Authors: List authors in the order they appear on the original article.

Eight or More Authors: List first six authors, . . . last named author. Also, list all authors in the order they appear on the original article.

What To Do if You Still Have Questions

If you still have questions, please stop by the Writing Lab (D120). We are here to help. The librarians in the Parkland College Library are also here to provide assistance. Thank you for your time today. Good luck with all of your writing projects.