The following is an assessment of my work as Conference Chair of the Alpha Phi Omega Section 50 Fall conference hosted by the Alpha Zeta Omega chapter right here at Parkland College. In addition to a reflection on the conference I have included photos from the event and the handout provided to conference attendees.

Want to run a conference?

“Hey we were wondering if you would mind taking over managing the conference this semester,” our chapter adviser asked me.

“Oh... okay.”

It was late August/Early September: that glorious time in the Fall semester when everything seems possible. You're doing well on your assignments, you love your teachers, and doing things like running a weekend conference for over a hundred people across central Illinois seems like a good idea.

But I'm getting a little ahead of myself.

The story actually begins a semester earlier, when some combination of too much coffee and homework drove me to attend an informational meeting for the Parkland chapter of the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity (APO.) By the time I remembered how shy I was, and that people like me didn't do stuff like join service fraternities, I was pinning a pledge pin to my shirt and giggling at the vernacular paradox of becoming a brother while having been a sister for 15 years.

Flash-forward through leadership courses, fellowships, and road trips, and here I was... not only a brother but also an officer, and getting the chance to run our chapter's biggest event of the year.

I felt a small finger of dread start to crawl up my spine and it must have shown.

Our adviser smiled at me. “You'll do fine, and the chapter will help you.”

Orientation, email and a whole lot of corn fields.

Up until my orientation for the (very official sounding) position of “Conference Chair” I really couldn't claim to know very much about the APO Section 50 Conference beyond the basics: it was a weekend event hosted by a chapter in the section two times a year where brothers got together to become better members.

During the course of two meetings with our Section Chair I learned more about the conference, while also identifying all the little projects we as a chapter needed to accomplish for the conference to run smoothly. This included everything from tracking down the caterers and booking the Parkland planetarium, to making chapter visits for promotion and finding corporate sponsors.
My official role would be managing communications with conference attendees: confirming registrations, processing payments, contacting presenters, and to a lesser extent handling promotion for the event.

The first weeks were an interesting mixture of tasks, the most satisfying of which was answering emails. While drinking my coffee and waiting to wake up I could cut and paste confirmation emails to send to the people who had registered the night before, and check in with the members of my team.

Another thing the chapter was responsible for was making chapter visits. We sent brothers out across the cornfields to every chapter in the section, armed with Powerpoint slides, QR codes, and friendly smiles. This was our opportunity to personally invite members to the conference. Though I was not strictly required to attend these events it was something I wanted to be a part of, particular because it was the part which seemed most daunting to me.

I had taken Speech 101 the previous semester, so I wasn't catatonic at the thought of giving a presentation, but there was a significant difference between delivering a eulogy for a cartoon character to 15 classmates and convincing random strangers to come to a conference. One advantage I had was I wasn't giving the presentations alone. Our chapter president was the brother officially in charge of chapter visits. Whereas my delivery style was more administrative his was more social and this worked well for presenting the conference as both a chance to learn and a chance to have fun.

Logistics

Once the chapter visits were over there was a shift in activities from advertising to logistics. We handled issues such as contracts, payment deadlines, what handouts we needed to give participates (see appendix) and a thousand little things no one thinks about until you go without them.

With each new item that popped up on the to-do list I became conscious of a hundred other things which should be checked, verified, delegated, or otherwise watched.

What perhaps surprised me most about this phase was the fact that I enjoyed it... on a certain level. Combining it with my classes and the other things I was involved in that semester meant I was never bored or suffering from a lack of things to do. If I found some school assignment daunting, I could “warm-up” in the morning by answering conference email and trouble-shooting smaller issues before switching gears to work on homework.

Registration: Friday night

We opened the doors for check-in at 6:00 pm on Friday, and from that point on my role was almost entirely checking people in and giving directions to the various activities going on that night. The three main events of the first night were: Launch (an official APO leadership program,) a board game fellowship and a presentation in the Parkland Planetarium.
Manning the registration table was a great chance to get the opportunity to interact with the brothers, both ones I knew from previous events and new ones. One of the cool things we were able to do was convince the president of APO to come to the conference, and Friday night was when I got to meet him.

All told over 125 brothers would check in between Friday and Saturday.

Saturday

November third was D-day for the conference and it started early, with our chapter members arriving before 7:00 am. All told the day would feature: two section meetings, 4 sessions of lectures (each with 3 options,) Explore (another official APO leadership program,) a catered lunch, and an after-event fellowship.

Because we'd put so much work into the event beforehand there really wasn't a whole lot to do for a large part of the day aside from be on-hand if any of the staff needed anything and keep wayward brothers from wandering off into the wilds of D-wing.

One downside to be so free was I had plenty of time to obsess about the next big event on the schedule: the business meeting. While the majority of the meeting was the responsibility of our section chair, three minutes of terror would be all mine.

In addition to being Conference Chair I was also serving as Parkland's section representative. Each of the representatives was responsible for giving a speech on the state of their chapter that year with a few catches. You had exactly nine slides and each flashed on the screen for only 20 seconds. On top of that you had 15 seconds to get to the stage and introduce yourself.

Waiting for my turn at the mike I was grateful I had taken the time to visit the chapters. I'd put a lot of time into practicing my speech in front of a tape recorder but that was nothing like the sea of eyeballs I was about to face. For the first time in my life my hands were shaking. We had passed out snack bags to the brothers, and the longer I waited the more the periodic munching felt like teeth biting down on my spine.

Then it was my turn. I jumped up, cracked a joke, and... my brain blacked out the rest... I've been told I managed to both successfully remain conscious and talking for the full amount of time, though when I think about it now I have my doubts.

The speech marked the high water mark of stress for the conference and the start of something far nicer: the gentle feeling that I had done something that was both good for me and for the people I cared about.

After thoughts

Personally I learned a lot from managing the conference, particularly in the areas of delivery, delegation, and using time effectively. I loved everything about it, even the parts which drove me crazy because they often produced either challenges to overcome or fun stories to shudder at.
later.

One of the more unexpected developments from the conference has been the effect it has had on my roles and goals for our APO chapter in the next semester. One of my stretch goals when I became an active was to become president. This was a stretch goal because it depended on a lot of things I couldn't control and shouldn't try to (like people's opinion of me.) Instead I focused on things I could control. Conference helped me build the confidence to see myself as a good candidate and to know what my strengths are.

At this semester's elections for the Alpha Zeta Omega chapter of Alpha Phi Omega I was elected to serve as president for the Spring 2013 semester.

When people ask: what is the point of community service? Why is it required for activities like the Honors Program? The best answer I can think to give them is: when you put your heart and soul into what you're doing you're granted a glimpse of what you're truly capable of, but when you put your heart and soul into something for the good of many you’re also granted a peek at what the people around you are capable of. In that one moment it really doesn't matter if you, or society, ultimately reach that potential because you've given it the chance to exist... often that's all potential really needs to grow into something stronger.

Hello Brothers,

Welcome to the Fall 2012 Section 50 Conference, and to Parkland college! Conferences are a great opportunity to get a sense of the role of Alpha Phi Omega beyond the borders of our own campus, as well as have a chance to develop new skills and collect awesome stories. We have some fun activities planned this weekend and are excited to be hosting the conference.

We have enclosed several items to make scheduling and navigating your weekend easier including schedules, maps, and contact information should you get turned around or lost while hunting down presentations.

Take some time to look through the course descriptions and see if there is are any in particular that you are interested in. For both those new to conferences and seasoned veterans, we highly recommend trying a little of everything. For those of you attending Launch or Explore be sure to leave plenty of time to find your room and check out one of our fellowships.

Friday night we will be hosting two fellowships: a game fellowship featuring some cool chances to challenge your brothers in a variety of activities, and a presentation in our own Staerkel Planetarium. We would also like to invite you to head over with us to Jupiter's at the Crossing after the Business Meeting on Saturday.

Thank you for being here with us, and we are looking forward to sharing our campus and chapter with all of you!

In LF&S,

Katherine Klindworth, Chair

Conference Fellowship Events

Planetarium Show: Join us for a show at the Staerkel Planetarium on campus titled “Odyssey”. This show takes us on a personal voyage of discovery through the cosmos, from the legends and monuments of early sky watchers to an imaginary flight through the Solar System and our home galaxy, and into the very depths of space and time. This is a complete digital re-mastering of the very first show to ever appear at the Planetarium, now updated and improved for 2012.

Saturday Lunch: We are offering a deli bar catered by Food for Thought, our on-campus food service vendor. You have your choice of meats and cheeses, as well as a pasta salad, bag of chips, and a drink. There is a vegetarian option as well. During lunch, we are asking for people to sit in assigned groups, socialize, and discuss their APO experience with each other. Group assignments are on your name tags.

After-Conference Social: We have reserved table space at Jupiter’s at the Crossing (2511 Village Green Place, Champaign) for those who want to join us for after-conference fellowshiping. Jupiter’s has fantastic pizza, appetizers, grinders, and salads, as well as a full entertainment room of video and carnival games, and pool tables by the hour. Individuals are responsible for their own food, beverage, and entertainment costs.

The conference committee gratefully acknowledges both Meijer and Staples for their financial and material support for the Fall 2012 Section 50 Conference.

He was elected National President by acclamation by the delegates to the 2010 National Convention in Atlanta. Mark previously served on the Board of Directors as Region VI Director (2004-2006) and National Vice President (2006-2010.) Mark was awarded Distinguished Service Keys by Delta Xi and Tau Omicron Chapters, Section 52 and Region VI. He is in the Society of Life Members and a Torchbearer.

Professionally, Mark is co-manager of the Office of Census Data for the Indiana Legislative Services Agency and a part-time instructor of political science at Indiana University-Purdue University in Indianapolis. He has a B.A. and an M.A. in political science from Ball State University. Mark lives in Fishers, Indiana, with his two children.

Sean Veal (Alpha Alpha ’08), Section 50 Finance Chair
Presenting: Expanding your Chapter’s Sphere of Influence
Sean Veal was initiated into the Alpha Alpha Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega in fall 2008. As an active he held various appointed positions, completed the APO LEADS program, and attended conferences at every level of the fraternity. His favorite experience was the two years working with interested students of Parkland College, culminating in the charter of the Alpha Zeta Omega Chapter in February 2011. Outside of Alpha Alpha he has been a member of Section 50 staff since January 2011 and is the current VP of Operations for the Chicagoland Area Alumni Association.
Workshop Session 1: 9:00am – 10:20am

Basics of APO Chapter Advising (Room X-222)

Presenter: Paris Barnes, Section 50 Advisor Relations Chair

This session will be a "boot camp" for advisors! We will cover a wide range of topics for new and experienced advisors alike. We will discuss what advisors do and what they should not do, who makes up the advisory committee, the role of the young alumni advisor, membership and pledging, inconsistent/underground chapter practices, and use of Officer Portal. This workshop is intended for chapter advisors and graduating members who are interested in becoming chapter advisors only.

Parliamentary Procedure: The Rules of the Game (Room X-223)

Presenter: Mark Stratton, National President

Football, baseball, basketball, euchre, and Monopoly are all games, and though they are played differently, they all have one thing in common: a set of rules that governs all who participate in them. Chapter meetings, meetings of the Board of Directors, and the Legislative Session at National Convention all have rules that govern them, too, but sometimes those rules can seem intimidating or overwhelming. This workshop focuses on the basics of parliamentary procedure, as outlined in Roberts Rules of Order, Newly Revised. Learn the basics of introducing business, the rules of debate and decorum, and the different methods of voting (including what an abstention really is!) Because this is a convention year, there will be an emphasis on how parliamentary procedure will be used at the National Convention. There will be handouts and reference sheets provided. National Convention Voting Delegates are required to attend.

Quality Recruitment and Retention Programs (Room X-225)

Presenter: Meagan Savage, Section 47 Resource Coordinator

Learn how to effectively recruit quality members AND keep them engaged once they join. Recruitment and retention go hand-in-hand and chapters need to understand both in order to be strong and healthy.

Resume Building and Job Searches (Room X-221)

Presenter: Sandy Spencer, Director of Career Center at Parkland College

In this workshop, we'll cover transferring your classroom and volunteer experience to the workplace, writing effective resumes and polishing your interviewing skills, developing your 60-second “elevator speech”, and using social media in your job search.
Workshop Session 2: 10:30am – 11:50am

Building and Using Advisory Committees (Room X-225)

Presenter: Paris Barnes, Section 50 Advisor Relations Chair

High functioning advisory committees can help student chapters function more smoothly. This workshop will focus on building effective advisory committees, what advisory committees do, communication between the advisory committee and the executive board, electing an advisory chair, and conducting advisory committee meetings. This workshop is intended for chapter advisors and graduating members who are interested in becoming chapter advisors only.

Expanding your Chapter’s Sphere of Influence (Room X-221)

Presenters: Jordan Russell, Section 50 Service Chair & Sean Veal, Section 50 Finance Chair

Who Am I? What is Alpha Phi Omega? How do I Expand My Chapter’s Sphere of Influence? In this workshop, you will first look at what makes you, YOU. Looking at your social identities/experiences and how they relate to your campus community. These identities and experiences make up Alpha Phi Omega and without them this fraternity would not be the same. Finally, this workshop will look at how to take your chapter’s identity and expand it to encompass other people on your campus. From recruiting members with different identities and experiences you will begin to expand your chapter’s sphere of influence. The overall purpose of this workshop is to widen the participants’ understanding of diversity and to explore briefly what organization lose through homogeneity and what can be gained by diversifying their membership, particularly service-oriented organizations.

National Convention: Legislation Discussion (Room X-223)

Presenters: Mark Stratton, National President & John Ottenad, National Vice-President

The Legislative Session of the National Convention is where the main business of the convention takes place. Proposed amendments to the Fraternity’s governing documents and rituals, as well as a variety of resolutions, will be reviewed and considered by a series of reference committees. Some of those proposals will be considered by the full Legislative Session. This workshop is an open discussion about the legislation that has been submitted for consideration. Bring your questions about that legislation to this seminar, where the National President and National Vice President will facilitate a discussion and respond to those questions. National Convention Voting Delegates are required to attend.

Service after College (Room X-224)

Presenter: Meagan Savage, Section 47 Resource Coordinator & Steve Bauer, Region VI Service Chair

Meet with several representatives from local and national non-profit agencies and learn about the opportunities available to continue to serve after you cross the stage.
Workshop Session 3: 1:00pm – 1:50pm

Recruiting and Retaining Advisors (Room X-221)

Presenter: Justin Martin, Section 50 Chair

Need new advisors, but don’t know where to find them? Have “paper advisors” who never seem to come around? Are you not exactly sure what an advisor is for or how to use them beyond signing your space requests? Looking to change things up with your advisory committee? In this session, we’ll cover the role of advisors from the active member perspective, how to look for the right kind of advisors, and proper care and feeding of your chapter’s advisory members.

APO Trivia Challenge (Room X-222)

Presenter: Roger Lau, Section 50 Alumni Relations Chair

APO Trivia is a trivia game in which participants get into teams of 2-4 and compete against other teams for the glorious prize at the end. Not only will you show your APO knowledge to your peers but you’ll also learn more about APO. If that doesn't grab your attention, then how about this: first place winner will receive an awesome prize ("awesome" as defined by the presenter of the game) and second place and below will receive a complimentary prize as well ("complimentary" as defined by the same person).

Social Networking and APO (Room X-225)

Presenter: Christy Pomatto, Section 50 Communications Chair

Learn how to utilize social networking sites like Facebook and Twitter to connect with other area organizations, improve communication within your own chapter, and increase awareness of Alpha Phi Omega on your campus and in your community. Improve your understanding of social networking safety and privacy and learn how to promote the best online image of yourself and your chapter.

Large-Scale Service Projects (Room X-223)

Presenter: Jordan Russell, Section 50 Service Chair & Steve Bauer, Region VI Service Chair

We could never put on a Service Project like that chapter does! We don’t have the people or resources! Let’s just do the same service projects we do every year! Does this sound like members from your chapter? Are you worried you can’t execute a large scale campus/community wide service project? Well, if that is the case take this workshop and learn how any chapter can do a large scale service project. This workshop will take you from start to finish on ideas to make a successful Large Scale Service Project.
Workshop Session 4: 2:00pm – 2:50pm

Advising College Students for Success (Room X-222)

Presenter: Joe Omo-Osagie, Parkland College Counseling and Advising Center

In this session, we will be discussing emotional intelligence as a source of effective personal communication. Participants will build skills in effective listening, rapport with students, identifying and managing situations with depression, anxiety, and other personal problems of students. This workshop is intended for chapter advisors and alumni members only.

Scouting and APO (Room X-223)

Presenter: Aaron Malone, Section 50 Scouting & Youth Services Chair

In this session, we will be discussing what the Boy Scout/Girl Scout programs are, how they fit into our Youth Service Program, and how APO chapters can volunteer with local Scouting units to help accomplish their goals.

Understanding Risk Management (Room X-222)

Presenter: Jeremy Bingman, Region VI Director

We often hear that we have to practice ‘risk management’ but what exactly does that mean? It probably means a lot more than you think. While it includes being safe at our events, it also means having good practices in how we run our chapter as well as regularly education ALL of our members. In this interactive workshop, we’ll talk about various scenarios and what kinds of implications these can have on you and on your chapter. We’ll also talk about a fun way that in which you can teach it to each pledge coming in as well as all of the chapter members to meet the chapter’s annual education requirement.

Underground and Unauthorized Activities (Room X-221)

Presenter: John Ottenad, National Vice-President

With the speed and ease of communication, an emerging area of risk management for the Fraternity has been the rise in underground or unauthorized activities. The National Fraternity has been increasingly discussing ways to address and confront these inappropriate activities that threaten to cause harm to our reputation and our Chapters across the country. This workshop will help define what are underground or unauthorized activities, explain the harm involved, identify examples and confirm what you should do if you find it or hear of it.
Appreciating your Members (Room X-223)

Presenter: Christy Pomatto, Section 50 Communications Chair

Your chapter wouldn’t exist without its members, but how do you make them feel important and needed? In this interactive workshop, we’ll talk about awards, recognition, and the little things you can do to keep your members feeling appreciated. Learn how you can use these methods to improve your chapter programming, increase retention, and keep your members motivated to go above and beyond.

Building an Active Program (Room X-222)

Presenter: Jeremy Bingman, Region VI Director

Active members are so often the forgotten part of the chapter. Between improving programs and recruiting new members, we often assume that our active members will be fine on their own and leave them to fend for themselves. Well, developing an active program for your chapter is one way which can improve member retention and this workshop talks about some new ideas on how to do this.

Creating a Chapter Leadership Program (Room X-225)

Presenter: Dan Collier, Immediate Past Section 50 Chair

Leadership is one of the core principles of Alpha Phi Omega. Yet, Leadership on the chapter level is often misunderstood or not firmly rooted in the overarching Servant Leadership Model adopted by the National Fraternity. This interactive facilitation is aimed at individuals who hold or plan to hold Leadership Development officer or appointed positions. Through interactive methods, we will identify how chapters currently develop leadership, discuss how this may fit within the Servant Leadership Model, and attempt to bridge gaps between the practice of Leadership Development and underutilized components of the Servant Leadership Model.

Using Officer Portal and APO Online (Room X-221)

Presenter: Kelly Goodpaster, Section 51 Chair & Justin Martin, Section 50 Chair

This workshop will be an opportunity check out the all-new and updated APO website, along with a review and information regarding the Officer Portal. We’ll see what treasures we can find on apo.org and discuss the OP in regards to fall reporting requirements to the National Office. We will also briefly cover some of the features of APO Online and how to get the most from this third-party product. Recommended for future Chapter presidents, Pledge Trainers, and Membership Vice-Presidents.
